

Tucsonans Return From Fishing Trip At Port Libertad, Sonora, Mexico

—o—

Last night the party of Tucsonans which has spent ten days fishing in Port Libertad, Sonora, returned to the city. They reported the fishing only fair, but that they had all they could eat, at that.

While in Port Libertad, they were able to study the Seri Indians at close quarters. About 40 of these people, whose home is on Tiburon Island in the Gulf of Lower California, and who are rumored to have been cannibals a few years ago, were camped near the Tucsonans. According to Mrs. Fred C. Roberts, the Indians were quite peaceful and devoted themselves to fishing.

Included in the party who enjoyed the trip and camping, were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roberts and family; a brother of Mr. Roberts, Irving C. Roberts of California; Prof. R. S. Hawkins and family; Prof. S. P. Clark; Mrs. Helen Elder; Mr. George S. Fansett, and Sydney Owens.

Mr. Fred Roberts, who has made several trips to Port Libertad, headed the caravan.
